

Winter, 2009

- Sign in washroom: “We aim to please. You aim too, please.”
- Always try to keep a smile on your face; it looks silly on other parts of your body.
- Never play peek-a-boo with a child on a long trip. There’s no end to the game. I finally had to grab my kid by the bib and tell him, “Look, it’s always gonna be me!”
- Right now I’m having amnesia and déjà vu at the same time.
- People say they’ve got to “find themselves.” My mother would have said to them, “Just put things away when you’re done with them. Then we can all find you.”
- Greed is one of the seven deadly sins. I knew a man so greedy he had eight deadly sins. He had one custom made.
- I knew I was an unwanted baby when I saw my bath toys were a toaster and a radio.
- We had a quicksand in our backyard. I was an only child—eventually.
- When I see the words “Some Assembly required” on the side of a box, I always look around for someone better than me.
- When you are dissatisfied and would like to go back to your youth, think of Algebra.
- You know you are getting old when everything either dries up or leaks.
- Some people try to turn back their odometers. Not me! I want people to know ‘why’ I look this way..
- I’ve traveled a long way and some of the roads weren’t paved.
- Long ago when men cursed and beat the ground with sticks, it was called witchcraft. Today it’s called golf!
